Attic Conversions Done the Gridley Way

Attic conversions are among the most cost-effective renovations a homeowner can undertake. Let the Gridley Company show you how to economically turn your neglected attic into much-needed storage, a bedroom, or more living space.

Nervous about renovating? Gridley has you covered. We're the general contractor committed to taking the anxiety out of the renovation process. We accomplish that with a streamlined approach to building that gives commercial and residential property owners exactly what they want, on time and on budget.

On each project, including attic conversions, our crew follows a detailed, 25-step process25-step process designed to put anxious minds at ease. We take the time to answer your questions about design, materials, expenses, and timelines.

To keep on schedule, Gridley provides complete home renovation services and assigns a manager to oversee every job and employs its own tradespeople, instead of subcontractors. Working as a coordinated team also enables us to keep high standards of workmanship.

Talk to a Gridley customer service representative about attic conversions we've completed for other clients. We think you'll agree that renovating your attic can be an ideal solution when you need space for an elderly parent or child returning from college.

Why Attic Conversions are Great Investments

Attic conversions are among Gridley's most popular projects because they are:

- Relatively low cost. Additions, which require expanding the footprint of a home by excavating and adding to the existing foundation, cost more than attic renovations. Attics also already have walls, a ceiling and a floor in place, and may require fewer construction permits than an addition.
- Practical. Attic conversions offer homeowners lots of options. The space can be renovated into bedrooms, additional living space, a media room, a children's play area, or even an apartment complete with bathroom to generate rental income.
- A good return on investment. Because the cost of attic conversions is relatively low, the return on your investment is high. A homeowner can expect to recoup around 80 percent of the cost of an attic renovation when it's time to sell.

We serve the Bay Area, including San Jose, Saratoga and Los Gatos.
