
We Design and Build Beautiful Additions to Ranch Style Homes in San Jose

Additions to ranch style homes in the San Jose area are among the most exciting renovations done by the Gridley Company.

The classic American ranch style home offers many options for upgrades. Its single-story construction and relatively generic appearance allows for a great deal of creativity.

Vaulted ceilings, wide open floor plans, spacious second stories, and recasting into one of any number of styles are all possible with ranch style homes. Additions to ranch style homes can add hundreds, even thousands of square feet to a home and transform a cozy 1960s rambler into a modern multi-story structure that better serves today's families and extended families.

Our clients choose the Gridley Company to build additions to their ranch style homes for several reasons:

- We carefully integrate renovations into the existing structure, inside and out. A completed project by Gridley looks seamless, as if the entire house was built at the same time.
- An addition provides space for growing families, when adult children move back, or caring for aging family members.
- Gridley designers and tradespeople work efficiently and quickly. Because we realize lengthy renovations are stressful for couples and families, our building process is kept simple. Delays are rare because we don't have to coordinate the schedules of sub-contractors - everyone who works for us is a Gridley employee.
