Garage Additions

Maybe you dream about having more space for storage, a workshop, or have big cars to park in your garage. If you're thinking about a new garage addition, Gridley can help you through design considerations such as size, access, how the garage relates to the existing architecture of your house and how the driveway should relate to your new garage. Our certified design team works with custom architectural software to help you visualize your new garage with your home. Once the garage addition design is complete, Gridley Company takes over so that there is one single point of contact during the garage addition construction phase.
